(According to the bible of Trip Advisor)

We're putting all our trust into the reviewers of Trip Advisor to bring you their top 5 ranked 'things to do in London' - but we wouldn't be telling you if we didn't agree wholeheartedly...or add our own little tips within ;-)

OUR CRITERIA:

- Umm...really just to be the first 5 highest ranked places to visit in London
- Actually, also for us Londoners to agree with the list!
- Must be iconic of London and a must-see for locals too

1 BRITISH MUSEUM

So many necessary, iconic items to see here - the Rosetta Stone, Egyptian mummies, Samurai armour... When you're all cultured out, rest your weary feet in the beautiful atrium cafe upstairs.

TripAdvisor says:
"Magnificent museum" "Great collection"

2 NATIONAL GALLERY

Huge museum with so much to offer - and with free admission. See masterpieces on display by world-famous artists throughout the centuries. We'd recommend taking advantage of the location and exploring Whitehall (#10 Downing Street), Trafalgar Square of course and Covent Garden into Soho for shopping and eateries.

TripAdvisor says:
"Great collection and even better location"
"Unusual and something for everyone"

3 VICTORIA & ALBERT MUSEUM

Another free entry museum in London - this building could be the actual exhibit itself - beautiful marble and stone at every turn. Not to mention the incredible cultural artefacts from all over the world.

TripAdvisor says:
"So much to see!" "A historical gem"

4 TOWER OF LONDON

A favourite amongst locals as well as tourists, the Tower of London never disappoints. While away a day here exploring it all, hearing amazing stories of its history as a prison, the spell of the ravens and of course, don't miss the Crown Jewels.

TripAdvisor says:
"See the jewels" "Give plenty of time to your visit"

5 BIG BEN

The beauty of Big Ben, or Elizabeth's Tower as the building is called that houses the bell nicknamed Big Ben, is that the area surrounding it is so steeped in history and beauty, it's a must visit for any local or tourist alike. Hop on the London Eye across the river to get the best view of these beautiful buildings and the rest of London.
